

Will and Warmer.

"A little nonsense now and then, is relished by the best of men."

Homes. — The following truthful, but sarcastic lines, are respectfully dedicated to the lady writers of the New Orleans Crescent, one of the best papers in the country. What should be done with the editor?

These hags, these hags, these scolded things.
Enforcing maiden and matron;

I shall go, between us, I think Madam Vance.

This year's in conjunction with Nature;

Can you, for life, tell wisdom from folly,
Cased in an expensive bundle?

I think, by the by, these hags on the sky,
Are rare things for Cupid to transfix!

This is what I mean — in case of a war,
Should the enemy or we play thunder,

To make the world dreary bomb-proof
Festivities;

And all us young fellows creep under!

The Tartars pull a man by the ear when they want him to drink, and keep pulling him until he opens his mouth, when they pour down the liquor. We know some folks whose ear would not require much pulling

The only class of men in the world who are not in the habit of disparaging their neighbors are the assessors of taxes; for it is well known they never "underrate" anybody in the slightest degree.

As gloomy Night is cheered by the bright ray of the silver moon, 'till her glory is lost in day, so may the dark hours of our life be revived by the golden gleam of friendship, 'till death opens the glorious gates of the life to come.

An Irish auctioneer, while expatiating on the merits of a telescope, sagely observed:

"How often has the widow's heart lept for joy when she has beheld her husband at a distance brought near to her by such an instrument as this."

To some men it is indispensable to be worth money, for without it they would be worth nothing.

Ladies now dress in the "breadth"—not the "height" of fashion.
